

HBXL Software Apprentice Scheme

What's it all about?

The HBXL Software Apprentice Scheme is a new way for apprentices to bring real value to the employers' workplace by learning key business-winning skills using IT and software including estimating, quoting and the production of building plans, designs and health and safety paperwork. These types of skills are vital for building company owners wanting to run a successful business.

Do I qualify?

Do you have an apprentice in your business studying in the building trade? If yes, they can now apply for the HBXL Software Apprentice Scheme so your building firm can get hold of business winning software from HBXL completely free for 3 months to use in the workplace – and then if you choose to keep the software you'll qualify for a greatly discounted rate saving hundreds of £££'s on the normal price.

Which software can I get my hands on?

The apprentice can get hold any of our professional packages completely free for 3 months to use within your business. This includes EstimatorXpress (RRP £848), PlansXpress (RRP £848), Health & Safety Xpert (RRP £798) or ContractsXpert (RRP £498).

The apprentice will also be able to attend online training events and webinars and full access to our Technical Support team to ensure they get up-to-speed and using the software to its' full potential over the course of the 3 months.

What's the deal?

At the end of the 3 months you can then get 15% off the software of your choice AND a completely free 2nd copy for the apprentice while they are employed by you which means that you can both use it at the same time!

How does it work?

Any company who has an apprentice registered with CAS (Construction Apprenticeships Scheme) may take on the software for a 3 month apprentice licence by proving their status by emailing us their Construction Apprenticeships Scheme number. All ConstructionSkills apprentices in England and Wales are registered with the Construction Apprenticeships Scheme (CAS) and in Scotland with the Scottish Building Apprenticeship Training Council scheme (SBATC). Call us for details.